

Tenneco Stakeholders:

On November 17, the next chapter in Tenneco's great story started as the sale of the company officially closed, making Tenneco a privately held company.

I am thrilled to introduce myself as Tenneco's new CEO and look forward to leading this talented global team, working with our partners and serving our customers around the world.

Tenneco is an extraordinary company with an outstanding heritage of serving its customers with the highest quality parts and services. Beginning today, we have a unique opportunity to continue that tradition and help position Tenneco for long term success.

As we move forward, I look forward to working with all our partners in business and the communities where we live and work as we strengthen our relationships and build upon our tradition of accomplishments.

For those potential team members who are thinking about joining us, Tenneco strives to be an employer of choice and is always searching for the best and brightest who desire to either begin or continue their careers with us. If you fit that description, don't hesitate to apply for one of our openings.

Thank you for your support as we move into our next chapter.

Jim Voss
CEO